

Privacy Policy

This Policy describes Time Staffing's information collection practices and how we protect the personal information we receive from you when you access our website or sign up to receive information from us.

Through this website, Time Staffing may collect personally identifiable information when you apply for employment, sign up to receive employment alerts, or request information from us electronically. Time Staffing uses the information it collects through the website to consider applicants for employment, respond to inquiries and requests for information, and/or to monitor website activity in order to be more responsive to the needs of our website users. By sending us your information, you consent to the collection and use of this information by Time Staffing for these purposes.

Time Staffing considers the information it receives private and confidential, and will not share such information with any third parties without the written consent of the user who has contacted us through the website. Time Staffing will not sell, rent or trade your personally identifiable information to any third parties. However, we will share personal identifiable information under the legal compulsion of a court, administrative agency, or other authorized legal entity.

If for any reason you do not agree with the terms set out in this Privacy Policy, please do not provide any information electronically through our website to Time Staffing. Instead, please contact us directly by telephone or through the mail at Time Staffing at any of our eight office locations listed on our website.